

Evan G. Collins has always had a healthy understanding of the intersection of faith and finance. Evan accepted his call to ministry while earning his bachelor's degree in finance. He soon completed this degree and enrolled in seminary while working in the banking and credit union industry. This work is considered to be a ministry extension for Evan as he seeks to help others redefine their view of money with a stewardship model.

Evan serves as Senior Pastor of Eastern Star Baptist Church in Memphis, TN, and works in the financial services industry. He believes in the value of bringing high-quality products and services to everyone that is in need; specifically, those in low, moderate, and underserved communities. He has been encouraged by the work and ministry of Faith and Money Network and is excited to be on the team.
